members of Georgian Dream, which creates a toxic environment in Georgia for the free work of media organizations and journalists. Our society is heavily polarized and the hate speech used by high-ranking officials against media and labeling of journalists as political opponents, encourage part of the society to verbally attack media representatives or obstruct their professional activities.

At the same time, crimes committed against journalists are largely unpunished. ∇ We call on the law enforcement agencies to react in a quick and timely manner to the attack on Vakho Sanaia and his family.

- We call on the ruling party to refrain from aggressive attitude towards the media.

∇ We call on international partners to pay special attention to the facts of verbal or physical attacks on the representatives of the Georgian media.
